"Farming" By Mail.

That work by correspondence can be carried to every person in the State interested in farming and the farm home is the opinion of Charles H. Williams, secretary of the extension division, University of Missouri, Columbia. Accordingly, Mr. Williams has arranged to have general and specific reading courses in agriculture and home economics given by mail.
The fee charged is $1.50. A certificate will be given with each course completed, which, not giving credit toward graduation, will admit to higher and more specialized studies.

The general reading course in agriculture covers all phases of farming to give a broad view. But suppose a farmer to be especially interested in stock raising, then he may devote his time to this one specific subject. Other reading courses may be had in dairying, horticulture, soils, farm crops, poultry raising and rural economics. Experts will direct the work in each branch.

All courses are open to women, but of especial interest to them is the work planned in home economics.
This reading course will deal with such phases of home life as cooking, ventilation, house decoration. The aim is to give as many short cuts as possible to good house-keeping learned from the experience of other women. It will be an exchange bureau of ideas.

Students may enroll for these courses by mail at any time without examination.
Courses in agriculture may also be arranged for high school credit toward the certificate in the Two-Year Winter Courses in Agriculture. In addition, courses in home economics are given for university credit.

Against Any Tariff.

(Los Angeles Tribune.)
Editor The Tribune: It is unfortunate that papers as progressive as the Tribune and Express have been, and that have done such noble work in advocating and bringing around better laws in this state, should still bow down to that fetid cald "protection," alias "tariff." A word born in iniquity in a pirate's roost called Tarifa in northern Morocco. A tariff is morally wrong and materially injurious. It benefits the few at the expense of the many. You state that California's welfare depends upon a tariff; upon her fruits, etc., and upon the products and manufactures of every state. If the motto, "The greatest good to the greatest number" is the proper one, why tax one hundred million people for the benefit of a few land owners and a sugar trust magnate like Mr. Oxnard, who admitted that he lately owned 51 per cent of the $25,000,000 sugar company's stock. Thirty-odd years ago in this city, without any tariff, I raised and sold inferior lemons and oranges on trees in orchard at 60 cents a box, and at a profit. Under proper laws that would squeeze the speculative value out of land, citrus fruits could be sold even cheaper now than then, so why insist upon making a hundred million people pay from $1 to $5 a box more for citrus fruits than they should pay. As evidence that the tariff does not benefit the wage earners, I will state that I paid $2 a day then for orchard laborers, when now I can get the same kind for $1.50 a day, and that, too, notwithstanding the laborers' living expenses have advanced 50 per cent.

But why waste time in useless tariff discussions when in the long run nothing but the taxing of land's unearned increment can do any good?
T. E. P., Los Angeles.

O. W. Hull, marshal of Allenville, was in Jackson Tuesday, as he had heard there would be a vacancy in the nightwatchman's position. His present job is about the most turbulent one that can be imagined, and if the stories which reach Jackson are true—and they have not been denied—they remind one of the "palmy" days of Dodge City and other frontier towns in the days of the untamed cowboy. Hull is a small fellow, but does not seem to know what fear is. On numerous occasions he had to make arrests where the culprit resisted and then had to draw his revolver to keep the arrested party's friends at bay.
Last week he had an encounter with a man by the name of Proctor hailing from Delta. Finally an agreement was reached whereby they crossed Whitewater and engaged in a battle, the vanquished to pay the fine. Hull whipped his larger opponent, but one or more of Proctor's friends or Hull's enemies mixed in and kicked or cuffed Hull. The latter looked like having been run through a threshing machine, but when in Jackson Tuesday most of the abrasion had healed. The fine has not yet been paid, according to the statement of the prosecuting attorney. It is clear that unless things change for the better, the final results will be a tragedy. No town can afford not to support its officers.— when I was a boy, and my memory wanders back to those days when such venerable men as T. P. Russell gave vent to his feelings through its columns. Oh if such men could live on and on, as their works do; but all must die, just as we will have to do not many days hence, and who knows

In Memoriam.

Miss Nellie Chrisco died August 25, 1913.

She was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church at Lesterville. There she received baptism about four years before her death and has ever since tried to live a Christian life and do according to God's will, as that is what He has commanded us to do. She went to Sunday School and church, and enjoyed the blessings of God very much. She engaged in talking about religion and teaching her other dear friends to do right.

She had lived to be sixteen years and ten months old when God called her away. We all feel sad since that dear one has been taken from us, for she was kind and seemed to love everybody, and everybody loved her.
There is a mother, father, a brother and a number of friends left to mourn the great loss of "Dear Nellie." We sympathize with them in that loss, but we feel that she now rests with her Savior and many other ones very dear to us—all that have passed away and gone to that home where sorrow will be no more.

She has written things that will make the hearts of her friends ache to read them. Such as:
"We all feel sad and distant land you may see the writing of my hand; and though the grave is called my bed, remember me when I am dead." She will be long remembered by one and all.

May God help us all that we may be prepared to meet her in a land that is happier and brighter than this!
